Weeding out

Yard Butler's line of tools for summer don't look awesome, but what they lack in flash they more than make up for in substance. The Rocket Weeder ($27) helps homeowners with that least-favorite gardening chore, weeding, by grabbing the weed without breaking the roots. The all-steel tool also boasts ergonomic design with an easy-on-the-back handle. The Core Aerator ($24) helps mature or heavily trafficked lawns breathe again by reducing compaction and thatch to let air, water and fertilizer get down to the root zone. Also in the line is the Deep Root Irrigator ($21) and the Step Edger ($28). Visit www.yardbutlerstore.com.

Fruity H2O

Bottled water companies have been out of control for years, charging an arm and a leg for, well, water. Now the flavored water makers have jacked up their output and prices as well. Take some dough back with the PUR line of water flavoring products. Target has the PUR Flavor Faucet Mount ($49.99), which infuses fruit flavor into your filtered water as it comes out of the faucet. This product comes with a raspberry cartridge, but others are sold separately. Visit www.target.com. Also available at Lowe's. PUR Water Filtration Systems also sells a sink-side tap with three-stage filtration, water pitchers and water dispensers. Visit www.purwater.com for details.

Use your judgment

We don't know why you would do this. But there is something perversely fun about mounting a cow head on your fence that peers out into the street or your neighbor's yard. Is the fun worth $79.99? You be the judge. Talaria Enterprises offers the Cow Peeker Ole Bessie as well as the Giraffe Peeker Johnny, also $79.99. Both are handcrafted with durable polystone. Visit www.talariaenterprises.com or call (800) 227-9196.
